Pacific Grove

The beach city of Pacific Grove, California looks like a quiet little town. What you see on Lighthouse Avenue, the main street, is only the surface. Pacific Grove, P.G. as the locals call it, is a town of back streets. Forrest Avenue is home to little clothing boutiques, Pavel's bakery and, Grove Market. Walk through the parking lot of Grove market to Fandango's. or Joe Rombis.

This little town is rich in history and places to explore, museums, antique stores a historic light house and dancing on Saturday night are just a few activities to explore. You can enjoy the sheltered beach, fishing, bicycling talking to the local people. Best of all enjoy the various restaurants. Whether you are looking for a quiet romantic get away or a family vacation Pacific Grove is a great place.

Say "beach " and I am there. I love Pacific Grove beach, but it is not Hawaii.

Other Favorite Restaruant

- Pacific Grove has something for every taste.

Red House Cafe is a tiny little place that specializes in breakfast, salads, and sandwiches. (The Red House closes in late afternoon) This is a charming place. On another trip my girlfriends and I ate here. We had a vegetarian, two gluten and a dairy free gals. They worked with us and we ate heartily and all felt delightfully full and well when we were finished,
